

SULZER "PLUNGED" ON FUNDS GIVEN FOR HIS CAMPAIGN

Governor of New York May Be Impached as Result of His Stock Market Speculations.

WAS $50,000 IN DEBT AT TIME OF NOMINATION

Had Dealings With Three Firms and Was Kept From Being Sold Out by Member of Staff.

New York, August 8.—Governor William Sulzer, of New York, was nearly $50,000 in debt at the time of his nomination, and the stock market speculations at the time of his nomination, and the contributions to his campaign fund, and the additional purchase of stock while this debt was hanging over him, according to testimony adduced during the hearings of the Frawley committee of the legislature.

The evidence brought to light is sufficient, according to Senator Frawley, chairman of the committee, to warrant proceedings to impeach the governor for violation of the corrupt practices act. The committee decided its hearings here today to consider what action should be taken on the evidence expected by Monday.

The governor, according to the evidence, had dealings with three different stock exchange firms and was kept from being sold out by one firm, L. N. Joseph, a Wall street banker, and a member of the governor's staff as a natural result of his position. The committee decided to hold a public hearing on the evidence expected by Monday.

Governor Sulzer, according to the evidence, had dealings with three different stock exchange firms and was kept from being sold out by one firm, L. N. Joseph, a Wall street banker, and a member of the governor's staff as a natural result of his position.

Arranged chronologically, the testimony appeared to show that on January 1, 1912, the governor had bought 100 shares of the stock exchange firm of Harris & P. Miller an indebtedness of $10,000 against the purchase by Governor Sulzer of 800 shares of "Big Pump" 200 shares American Bonding and Refining company and 100 shares of South Pacific. This evidence was given by Melville B. Butler, a member of the firm who on Wednesday was refused to answer the questions of the committee. Before testifying today his counsel announced that he had agreed that "Mr. Butler's lips should be sealed."

There were no other purchases of stock recorded on the governor's account for the year to the witness until December 31, 1912, when the governor bought 100 shares of "Big Pump" making 400 in all. On November 11 the firm, according to a letter produced by the witness, made its first call upon the governor for more stock.

The evidence showed that on November 18 previous the governor had paid $10,000 to Harris & P. Miller to adjust the account, but that on December 18, apparently in response to the call for more stock, he paid to $10,000 more.

During Governor's Campaign. In October of the same year the evidence indicated that Frederick C. Caldwell, the governor's secretary, had purchased from Boyer, Griswold & Co. $50 shares of "Big Pump" stock, which was sold outright at $5, for $1,025, the $25 representing the balance of the cash bought on October 18 was paid for partly in checks and partly in cash, which were identified in the testimony as Sulzer's campaign contributions. There were seven checks in all, and the checks were cashed at the bank of Richards, counsel for the committee, as having been paid campaign checks. A transcript of the account in the firm's books showing how the payments for the stock were made read:

William Sulzer (personal check), $100.
Theodore W. Myers, $100.
John Lynn, $50.
Lorman A. Spaulding, $100.
Edward P. O'Dwyer, $100.

Boy's Skin Unbroken By Fatal Bolt Which Shattered His Bones

Examination of Dublin Boy's Body Discloses Fact That Internal Effect Was Worse Than External.

The funeral of John Stanley, son of Commissioner of Labor H. M. Stanley, who was killed by lightning in Dublin Thursday afternoon, will be held at 10 o'clock this morning at Pookey's chapel, in this city. The internment will be at West View. The boy's account of death, at which he was a member, will appear as pathos and a great honor.

A close examination of his body by physicians revealed the fact that although the lightning left few signs on the outside of his body, a good portion of his bones, especially in the upper portion of his body, were shattered and twisted. The internal injury and effect of the bolt being much worse apparently than on the outside.

The strongest force of the bolt went through his right side, apparently entering his head on that side, where it turned a small place about the size of a dime, burned another one on his shoulder, but deeper into the flesh, another on his back, and came out through his right side, burning through the top and leaving it open much in the way a plant cannon cracker would have done if it had exploded in the place. The bolt was not torn off, but the upper portion of the bolt was buried and torn.

The body was disarranged when it was found, and it was found that the bolt was not torn off, but the upper portion of the bolt was buried and torn.

Washington, August 8.—The $50,000, 000 of federal funds about to be deposited in the national banks of the west and south to assist in moving the crops will be increased to $100,000,000, necessary to enable the government to mobilize all the needed cash of the public treasury to the agriculturally needy of the country to avoid the money stringency characteristic of the crop moving period.

The two walked down Madison street together, and over sandwiches in a cheap all-night restaurant the man who played with Irving and Perry and Ben graduated told a story which would drive away the glamour from the most awe-struck youth or maiden in the world.

It was with reluctance and by much prompting that the story was warmed out of him. The man seemed to think that it would be taken as an appeal to his own vanity.

"I came south with a production some time ago," he said, "when the toughs here, but the company closed on account of the intense heat. The company was barely able to pay expenses, and they left me high and dry, still owing them my salary."

Hopkins Woman Denies Charges Made By Dalton and Jim Conley; Is Forced to Admit Untruths

Daisy Hopkins, a resident of DeKalb, Ga., and the woman who Jim Conley and C. B. Dalton declare frequently went to the National Pencil Factory with Dalton while Leo Frank was there and was aware of his presence, was the first witness called by the defense Friday morning.

The woman swore to a full and complete denial of every charge that the white man and the negro had made and declared that she only knew Frank by sight, as she had worked at the factory from October, 1912, until June, 1913.

When Solicitor Hugh Dorsey took her on cross-examination, however, he succeeded in trapping her into admitting that she had sworn to be on the stand when she declared that she had never been in jail. When confronted with a man who is said to have secured her release she admitted that she had been there on a "charge of immorality."

The woman, who was seen in the courtroom for the first time proved to be decidedly plain in features and angular in form. She had some of the pale appearance of a factory woman, but showed rather the complexion of a woman who has lived in the country. White shoes and stockings, a white dress topped by a light yellow straw hat of the "bushy" variety, completed her attire.

After the usual questions to establish her identity, Attorney Luther Z. Ross asked her if she had ever been married. She said that she had.

"Did you ever work at the National Pencil Factory, and if so, when?" "I worked there from October, 1912, until June, 1913."

"What floor did you work on?" "The second floor."

"How many other women worked there with you?" "About ten, sometimes more and sometimes less."

"Do you know Leo M. Frank?" "Only know by sight."

"Ever talked to him or to you?" "No."

"Ever drink beer with him in his office or anywhere?" "No."

"Do you know C. B. Dalton?" "Yes, I know him when I see him. He was at the house where I lived."

"Did you ever go to the factory with him at any time during office hours or after?" "Never in my life."

"Did you ever introduce him to Frank or to Jim Conley?" "No."

"That's all," said Mr. Ross. Solicitor Dorsey then began to cross-examine her.

"You say you have been married?" "Yes."

"When and where?" "About ten, sometimes more and sometimes less."

"Do you know about three years ago?" "Yes, I do."

"Where is he now?" "He's dead."

"Aren't you under a physician's treatment?" "Yes."

"What?" "I don't know."

"How many times have you been in jail, Miss Daisy?" "I've never been in jail in my life."

"I've never been in jail in my life," she replied quickly and with a show of anger in her manner.

"Trapped in Misstatement." "You never been in jail, is this country or anywhere else?"

"I said I've never been in jail anywhere," she replied.

"Do you see this man here?" "Yes, I do."

"Is he the man who was with you?" "No, he never got me out of jail. I've never been in jail."

"You mean to say that this man, N. A. Garner, never got you out of jail?" "Yes, I do."

"What were you there for, wasn't it for immorality?" "No, I don't know."

"What were you there for, wasn't it for immorality?" "No, I don't know."

"What were you there for, wasn't it for immorality?" "No, I don't know."

MODEL OF FACTORY ATTACKED BY SOLICITOR

Model of the National Pencil Factory, which was introduced by the defense, admitted that in many ways it was not a correct representation of the factory. It shows the basement where Mary Phagan's body was found, ground floor where Jim Conley sat, and second floor, Frank's office in front and in rear machine room where state says she was killed.

Hinchey Tells of Seeing Frank On Car on Day of the Murder

H. J. Hinchey, of 391 Peachtree street, a business acquaintance of Leo Frank, and manager of the South Atlantic Blue Pipe company, was put upon the stand by the defense. He stated having seen Frank on the murder date as the superintendent rode into town on a Washington street trolley car, meeting him at Washington and Hunter streets.

He was questioned by Mr. Arnold. "Did you see Leo Frank that day?" "Yes."

"Where?" "Near the capitol."

"What time?" "He was about a riding car."

"No, I was driving an automobile."

"Did you speak to him?" "No."

"What time was it?" "Between 2 o'clock and 2:15."

"Tried to fix time." "How did you judge the time?"

"When the development first published the tragedy, I tried to determine the time by making a trip by automobile in the same manner my wife and I had made on the day we saw Mr. Frank. We drove to the capitol and back in about the time we saw Mr. Frank."

"What were the conditions of the street?" "The streets were crowded, and the trolley cars were running fast."

"How many times did you see him on that trip?" "Only once."

"What was inside the car?" "I was manipulating the levers of your automobile."

"Trying to keep from accidents?" "Yes."

"There was nothing extraordinary to cause you to notice Frank in particular?" "Yes."

"No, except for the fact that I had had business dealings with him."

"Did you see anybody else on the trip that you recognized?" "Yes."

"Visited Frank in jail." "How many times have you been to see Frank in jail?"

"Only once."

"Did you discuss this matter with him?" "Yes."

"Why did you mention it?" "I just wanted to inform him of the fact I had seen him that day."

"That before or after the incident?" "Afterwards."

"Whom did you first tell of having seen Frank?" "Frank himself."

"Was the necessity of your going over the maneuver of your automobile trip?" "After I knew I was to be subpoenaed as a witness, I decided to check up on the time."

"You found out you were to be a witness and then you visited him in jail?" "Yes."

"Who informed you that you were to be a witness?" "Leonard Haas."

CAMPAIGN FUNDS USED BY GOVERNOR SULZER

John W. Cox, $200. Frank W. Strauss company, $1,000. John Dealing, $1,000. Total, $1,200.

Checks for Campaigns.

The John Lane check was identified as a campaign contribution in testimony on Wednesday and before a Senate committee. A lawyer, testified today that his check likewise was a campaign contribution.

During the same month 200 more shares of "Big Four" were delivered to Colwell by Fuller & Gray, another stock exchange firm. This is the firm which had on its books account No. 240, the identity of which was solved today when a clerk, J. F. Ingram, E. B. Butler, testified that Mr. Gray had told him the account was Governor Sulzer's.

The governor's next transaction in selling his 120 shares of Southern Pacific for $2,240. The governor's account with Harris & Fuller, according to Mr. Fuller, was known as No. 62.

The governor, according to Mr. Fuller, ignored the firm's calls for more money. One letter sent him June 1, 1913, read:

"I sent you a telegram last week stating that we would like to have an interview with you, but as yet have not received any reply. It is very important that we shall get into communication with you as soon as possible."

A second letter, dated June 11, read: "I have endeavored for a number of days to get in touch with you in reference to the condition of your account, it being very bad and we must insist on immediate attention to this very important matter. We are sending a deposit of $15,000 as soon as we bring your account up to the required margin."

The result of this communication was that finally something over $24,000 was paid by Joseph and the account taken up. Is that right?" Mr. Fuller was asked.

"That was some time after. We got A. E. Sprague in before the account was finally taken up."

A. E. Sprague is said to have been interested with Governor Sulzer some twenty years ago in the exploitation of the Alaska industrial company, a mining corporation.

"You schedule," asked Solicitor Dorsey.

"No, I never said that."

"Are you sure?" "Yes."

"Where did George Epps get on the car?" "I couldn't tell you; I never saw him."

"Why did you happen to notice Mary Phagan so particularly?" "Was she a very pretty girl or not?"

"Well, she was certainly not ugly," replied the motorman.

"Could I get off the car at Forsyth and Marietta and reach the National Pencil Factory quicker by walking down Forsyth than by riding around in Hunter and Broad?" "It would take about as long to go either way."

"How does it happen that you remember seeing Mary Phagan particularly and know when she got off that day, when there were hundreds of other people who rode with you during the day?"

"Well, when I was relieved at Forsyth and Marietta I came in and sat down behind her and I had a picture in my pocket which I remember taking out and showing her, and we talked about it."

"Could not identify dress." "Mathews was then asked to describe the girl's dress, but could not do so further than to say she had on some sort of a light colored dress. When shown the dress he said that it was the same one she had worn that day."

"Was looking at the girl, not the dress?" "Mathews explained naïvely that he didn't see George Epps on the car."

"Would you say he was not on the car?" "I can't say about that; I didn't see him, if he was."

"Mr. Dorsey concluded and Mr. Arnold then asked the witness several questions."

"When did you hear of the murder?" "Sunday morning about 6 o'clock."

"Did you see her body?" "Yes, at the undertaker's, about 6 o'clock that evening."

"Were you certain that she was the girl that rode with you?" "It was possible."

"Mathews was then excused."

Witness Admits Discrepancies In Model of Pencil Factory

T. H. Willet, a pattern maker, who built the model of the pencil factory, "I didn't measure it."

"In question of measurements, the model door isn't correct as to the trap door."

"This hole in the trap door isn't in proportion to the blue print, it's too small."

"On what plan was this model built, ground or blueprint?"

"The model is magnified thrice from the blue print, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"Did you do your best to conform with the blue print?"

"Yes."

"Did you have instructions from anyone to make the model false to the printer?"

"No."

"What is your occupation?" he was asked by Mr. Arnold.

"Pattern maker."

"Did you make an inspection of the National Pencil factory?"

"Yes."

"In making this model, as to its dimensions and proportions, you have followed exact figures of blue prints?"

"Yes."

"Under cross-examination, he was then cross-examined by Mr. Hooper."

"You do not know whether this is a correct representation or not?"

"It was made from the figures given me."

"No."

"Did you see the factory?"

"I saw the front end."

"Are these parts in the basement correct?"

"I made them so they would be plain to view."

"You made them incorrect, then, so they would be plain to view?"

"I made them according to the blue print given me."

"Were these front doors made to exaggerate true conditions?"

"I made them according to the blue print given me."

"The witness nodded an answer."

"Would you tell the jury that these windows are accurate?"

"Yes."

"Do you pretend to say these windows in the second floor are correct, too?"

"I don't know."

"What about the stairway? Is it correct?"

Civil Engineer and Photographer Tell of Making Plats and Photos

Ira T. Kaufman, civil engineer, who had been employed by the defense to make drawings of the building from 59 East Georgia, avenue, where Frank and his wife lived, and also of the National Pencil factory, following the street car conductor on the stand.

Kaufman testified that he made the plans of the "big town" on Tuesday of this week. The plans were shown to the jury.

"Could you stand in the kitchen and see the mirror in the dining room?" asked Mr. Arnold.

"It is impossible to see the mirror from the kitchen."

"Why?" "Because of a partition there."

"Could you see any part of the mirror?" "No, a small part."

Albert M. Smith, husband of the little girl, but that he did not stand in the kitchen and saw by the reflection of Leo Frank to the mirror that he was sitting at the dinner table."

"Have you drawn a plan of East Georgia, avenue and Washington street?" "Yes."

"How far is it from the home to Washington street?" "175 feet."

"To Pulliam street?" "175 feet."

"Have you made detailed drawings of the pencil factory?" "Yes."

The plans of the factory were then explained to the jury.

The civil engineer then asserted that the distance between the elevator shaft and the street where the body was found was 135 feet, and that from the elevator shaft to the trunk pile was 15 feet.

He also stated on being questioned that from the spot where New Lee body it was possible to see part of the street and also that a man standing across the street from the pencil factory on Forsyth street could see the trunk pile. He was excused at 1:45 and the jury was allowed a short rest.

Adams on Stand.

Following the cross-examination of Mr. Kaufman, Adams was called to the stand. He was asked to explain the plans and drawings of the factory and the street where the body was found.

Adams swore, as Kaufman had done, that a person could not stand in the kitchen and see the mirror in the dining room, but that he could see the mirror in the dining room from the kitchen.

Adams was then excused.

Bill Smith ought to have yanked him from the ninth inning at Nashville Friday. Another game might have been saved. Second game of trip where pitcher was kept in too long.

Tommy Leach is guilty of the error of omission, however, that cost the game. The Vols needed two runs in the eighth. When Hoffman singled to left, Leach should have made the play to the plate, but he failed to do so. The Vols needed two runs in the eighth. Poor Judgment Loses Another Game

Rally and Down Crackers; Should Have Yanked Love

By Paul W. Twiss.
Nashville, Tenn., August 4.—(Special.)—The Vols pushed the Crackers further down from the pennant ladder by again coming from behind and winning a ninth inning rally which sent a trio of runs over the plate after victory seemed ready to perch on Billy Smith's crown.

Love walked through the game, being frequently in trouble through his wildness, and only flashy work by the Crackers and remarkable playing turned the Vols back before the final seven game.

Joe Blair, who by the way, was the star in the Cracker attack, leaped over five times, reaching first on four occasions and scoring half of four runs. He walked to start the matter, and fanned over when Leach walked off a sweeping trip to left.

Leading Producers of Georgia and Florida Argue That Output Must Be Curtailed. Jacksonville, Fla., August 8.—"Breakers ahead" was the danger signal held up to the naval stores operators who met here today to discuss the naval stores market and the methods whereby better prices could be obtained. The question of prices was discussed by many of the leading producers of Florida and Georgia and all agreed that the business was in a bad condition and would probably remain so for three or more years. After the present conditions had been explained three propositions were mentioned as possible remedies for the trouble. First, the operators asked their factors to refuse to loan any more money for supplies and expenses thereby forcing all to cease operations for a period of sixty days or more. This was not thought to be a good plan because it was not thought to be a good plan because it was not thought to be a good plan.

Why not let us save you both annoyance and money by handling the entire work? The Southern Engraving Company, being fully prepared to handle any work of this character in its entirety, is enabled not only to produce better work in the various branches, but to produce it CHEAPER than when it goes through half a dozen people or firms. MISSION OF LIND MISUNDERSTOOD, DECLARES BRYAN

Statement of Mexican Foreign Office Based on Misrepresentation, He Says, After Consultation With Wilson.

HOPES FOR SUPPORT OF PUBLIC OPINION

Each Step in Administration's Plan Will Be Made Known to Foreign Governments Throughout World.

Washington, August 8.—Tension over the Mexican situation was lessened throughout today in official circles. President Wilson and Secretary Bryan in an early conference discussed the message from Manuel Garcia Adalpe, acting minister of foreign affairs, stating formally in behalf of President Huerta that unless Jose Joaquin de Urquiza, personal representative of President Wilson, en route to the Mexican capital, bore credentials recognizing the Huerta government his presence in Mexico would be understood as an act of war.

Later the American embassy at Mexico City, through Nelson O'Shaughnessy, charge of affairs, was instructed to explain to the acting minister of foreign affairs that the information on which his statement must have been based could not have come from the state department, there was no official declaration of Mr. Lind's purpose in visiting Mexico has been made.

Mr. Bryan also issued the following statement:

Bryan Issues Statement.
The statement of the Mexican foreign officers was based on misrepresentation for which the government is not responsible. In sending General Lind as an observer to the Huerta government, this department will not assume that his going will be contrary to the policy of the United States.

Understood That Relative of the Preacher Has Settled Lawyer's Claim.

Macoon, Ga., August 8.—(Special.)—The suit of Attorney O. C. Hancock against Rev. E. T. Moore, pastor of the Baptist church at Andersonville, was not pressed. It is understood, a brother-in-law of Mr. Moore having agreed to settle Mr. Hancock's claim against him.

Attorney Hancock represented the minister in his sensational fight against Macoon. Moore here some time ago and after the case was won the minister failed to pay the attorney his fee or to repay $100 in borrowed money, resulting in the suit being brought in the city court of Atlanta.

One of the charges in the bill of complaint was that a relative of Mr. Moore's had paid the preacher $200 for his silence regarding the relations between this relative and Mrs. Moore.

Mr. Williamson's term expires this fall and if Mr. Fetter resigns he will go on in time for both vacancies to be filled at the same time.

It is reported that Mr. Fetter will be on Bridge Smith's ticket as one of the department of justice at Washington. He has been in Macoon for several days investigating claims made by a number of Macoon people for outlay sustained during the war. Judge Blake will return to Washington Sunday.
